

My reflection in the National Assembly

A process guide can be like a referee in soccer game, a gatekeeper, a spiritual guide, a listener, or an observer.....But more important, he/ she is a person who can help the proceeding of the assembly according to the light of God and the Holy Spirit.

It was a big surprise to me when I received the call to shadow the process guide in the National Assembly. Like Mary in the Annunciation, I was anxious and doubting. After my discernment, I know “for nothing is impossible to God”, and I have faith that God “will provide” everything for not only for me, but for the greater glory for Him.

In the assembly, miracle came to me. Instead of being a player in the field, I was an observer of the game. I listened to the dialogues and observed the interaction in the assembly in a contemplative mode. I could see the Holy Spirit was flowing among us in the assembly, through consensus, variance, discussion, debate, or even question. The openness and respect gave us the spiritual freedom, energized our fire to walk closely with Jesus in the unity of a community.

I am grateful to have this incredible experience in shadowing the role of process guide. The enlightenment in deep listening heightened my sensitivity of the movement of the Holy Spirit, and the awareness of vulnerability of our human nature. Last but not the least, the wisdom and mentor-ship of the Peloso's, and the encouragement of the GC are also the main source of my consolation. All in all, I deeply treasured in saying “YES” to God and to the community, as this is definitely a very special spiritual journey in my life.

Kyoko Leung